Research From Johns Hopkins University Regarding Children's Learning Indicates

- All students experience learning loss when they do not engage in educational activities during the summer.
- Summer loss equaled about one month per grade level subject during the summer.
- The subject of math showed the greatest overall loss with students losing 2.6 months in math computation skills.
- A majority of students want to be involved in a summer program that helps them keep up with schoolwork or prepares them for the next grade.

Maintaining skills over summer may bring major achievement gains during the next school year & years into the future.
